Top Docs 2006

Our fifth top doctors survey offers Richmond physicians' recommendations in 54 specialties

The wait is over. We're not exaggerating when we say that hardly a week goes by that we don't get at least a few calls from readers looking for our latest Top Doctors issue. We heard you, loud and clear, so this month our top-doctors survey returns for the fifth time, after skipping 2005. For this year's edition, we sent out surveys to 3,322 doctors, more than ever before, using a list of licensed practitioners obtained from the Virginia Department of Health Professions. Of the 3,322 surveys we mailed, 403 were returned by our deadline, for a return rate of 12 percent.

The list itself begins on Page 92. The top-five vote getters are listed in most categories, with the physician who received the most votes starting the list in their category. Doctors are then listed in order according to the number of votes received. Some categories may have more than five names because of ties, and in the case of ties, doctors are listed alphabetically. In a few specialties, fewer than five physicians are listed, because the others didn't garner enough votes to reach the cutoff set by the magazine's staff.

Before you flip ahead to the list, though, be sure to take a look at the intervening pages, in which we feature interviews with five top docs from our list, asking them questions ranging from the somewhat serious to the slightly uncomfortable. You'll also find stories on hospitalists, a growing population of doctors who specialize in the treatment of hospitalized patients; patient advocates, hospital employees and volunteers who aim to keep patients happy in ways both big and small; and the spiritual side of hospitals, from chaplains to prayer gardens. --The Editors
